Patron(s) mean(s): Those people who would like to support primary people with disabilities who live in state custody.

The way of it:

- The people who want to be patrons, apply to the program

- They meet the involved people with disabilities and after it, every patrons "choose" a person who want to support (we haven't concretized yet this way exactly but the the mutual sympathy is very important).

- They do programs together. For example going theatre/zoo/etc.; patrons invite their choosen person to a family lunch; patrons visit their choosen person in the institution where he or she lives; etc. They can decide individually what they want to do together.

We can call the patron(s) as "godparent(s)". The aim of this program to help the participants to make friendship with eachother through the common activities. I think it is really good to the people with disabilities and to the patrons too.

Our organisation helps them to find each other trough this program, supports their activities financially and follows their relations permanently.
